

I Want Candy, LLC.

BEFORE SHE LOSES HER HEAD, KIRSTEN DUNST'S SHOES ARE AS DELICIOUS AS HER DESSERTS.

Suite Marie

The queen of the preen on screen Sarah B. Hood

Warner Bros.

JOELY RICHARDSON REVELS IN THE AFFAIR OF THE NECKLACE.

If there's an all-time list of fashion divas, Marie Antoinette has to make the TOP 10. Maybe her gruesome end on the guillotine makes her luxurious life all the more fascinating. For whatever reason, filmmakers have always gone to extreme lengths to portray the loveliness of her extravagant apparel.

Most recently, Sofia Coppola's Marie Antoinette casts Kirsten Dunst as the doomed French queen. Look for delicious shoes - custom-made by Manolo Blahnik himself - and luscious gowns in birthday-cake colours, created by Milena Canonero (winner of Costume Design Oscars for Barry Lyndon and Chariots of Fire).

Canonero collects antique textiles that she reshapes and reuses in her designs. One of her dresses for another Marie Antoinette (Joely Richardson in 2001's The Affair of the Necklace) toured North America in the 2004 exhibition 50 Designers, 50 Costumes,

